Pennsics Past

For the Pennsic that never was...

A collection of stories, memories, and photos from across
Highland Foorde and beyond

round this time, people would gather from all over the Knowne World to live in a little city on a campground called Cooper's Lake. Land would be measured, tents set up, classes to teach and to learn from, great battles to be had, and stories to tell. Friends who only see each other once a year are neighbors once more for two weeks. But with the Covid Pandemic sweeping across the globe, the safety of the populace was taken into great account and for the first time, Pennsic was postponed.

But, that doesn't mean that we all still can't gather together. Since the pandemic hit, the SCA has made leaps of improvement to recreate moments in a virtual setting and Pennsic is no different. With Facebook Groups, Zoom rooms, and Discord servers alight, people are gathering more often now than ever before. To honor that, here are some of Highland Foorde's favorite memories from Pennsics past...

One of my favorite Pennsic memories involved a rain storm. I think that's pretty typical honestly. The rain causes chaos and we react to it. Our main tent gets "cows" (where the canvas stretches a bit and fills with water) so we run around and "milk" said cows with whatever stick we have at hand. As it poured down and my campers ran around laughing and calling warnings about where the water was going to go (VERY IMPORTANT, by the way) Larson yelled loudly "THIS IS A DUMB HOBBY". And we all fell into hysterics, because WHO WANTS THIS?? But man, we all love it so. So much so that his Excellency presented Larson with a pewter pin stating "this is a dumb hobby"

– Baronness Sinn Larensdotter

Daniel and I used to camp with Cambion, when we went to Pennsic. One year it rained. And rained. Hoo boy, did it rain. We set up in the rain, the first weekend. M.Igor and M.Fevronia had a Grimms Tent set up to await their arrival... and a seep spring opened up underneath it. They found pallets, and over that put plastic and then straw. But things were still squishy.

You have to understand, now, that Cambion was camping at a site easily 140 feet from the nearest water, and of that, 40 feet was straight up. SO...The Sunday morning of the middle weekend, for the first time, the day dawned bright and clear. Barbara of Cambion went out in her bare feet onto the dewy (well, soggy) lawn...took one look down... and screamed,

SCORPION! SCORPION!

Well, THAT brought everybody in the camp running. M. Igor, who comes from Arizona where they HAVE scorpions, and knew perfectly well that scorpions do not occur in western Pennsylvania, got there first. He looked down, and said, Fi-le'!

It turned out to be an enormous crawfish. It was scooped up in a dish and M.Igor led the younglings of the camp down to the stream to ceremonially dump it back in. But as M.Igor said later,

“You know it’s bad, when the aquatic life seeks higher ground.”

– James of Rutland

My favorite memory was last year, when our campmates turned the large pond at the bottom of our block into a shrine to Msr. Flamand (a plastic inflatable flamingo float). By the end of Pennsic, it had become a veritable pilgrimage site, with candles and flowers and gifts from neighboring camps. It was a brilliantly creative way to deal with a nuisance issue.

Clan Cambion has, shall we say, A Rep for sneaky tricks. Sir Timothy of Arindale, AKA Timothy Swordbender from the Great Sword of State actually bending across his shoulder when he got tapped, came to Cambion to celebrate- that night? The night after? At any rate, he had been WARNED NOT TO LET HIS CHAIN OUT OF HIS HANDS. There's the setup. So Cambion was all in a circle in chairs around the fire, and M. Igor looked at Sir Timothy's chain, which was made of huge (hollow) links.

He said, "Boy, that must be heavy."
And Sir Timothy said, "no, it's not."
"Can I heft it?"
"Sure."

And M.Igor hefted it from hand to hand a minute, and said, "Yes, that IS light."

And passed it on to the person on the other side of him, away from Timothy. That person passed it on. Sir T. sat there with a sick look on his face, as the chain went halfway around the circle, and got to Maile. Maile was not, shall we say, willowy... And she said, "[I forget who] will love this.", pulled her chemise string out and dropped the chain down. It disappeared like apple peelings down the drain.

Sir Timothy did eventually get it back, but had MUCH egg on face at the time.

A night scene of a festival or fair. In the foreground, several large tents are illuminated from within, casting a warm orange glow. The tent on the left has a decorative patterned top and arched openings. In the middle ground, a calm lake reflects the lights from a building on the far shore. The background shows a dark, silhouetted forest under a twilight sky. A bright light source, likely the moon, is visible in the upper left corner, creating a lens flare effect.

Until next year...

Repast

When you walk through the Pennsic troll, no.. When you are driving to Cooper's Lake, no.. In the many days before Pennsic as you pack and plan, a list has formed of the many friends you will see, classes you will attend, and merchants you can't wait to buy from again. One such merchant, who has been around since Pennsic X, is a frequent find on everyone's list. As lovely as their spice blends and sweet as their Poudre Fine, Auntie Arwen's Spices is a staple for the mundane and SCA'dians alike. But who is Auntie Arwen, and how did her spices become all that they are today?

Would you believe me if I told you it all started because of her Garlic Salt? Specifically, the well known Blatantly Gahhaarlic Salt. Well it's true! Jane Sibley, better known to us as Auntie Arwen, had always dabbled in spice blends but never really shared it with the public until her garden club ran a fundraiser. She offered up a batch of her garlic salt and after seeing how well it sold, and how much the garden club made from it, she quickly whipped up 11 more blends. She sold them locally and at Pennsic in little orange prescription bottles and the next you know, 11 blends became 50, the plastic bottles evolved into the beautiful glass hex jars she uses today, 50 blends became 75, and now over 450 blends of spices as well as teas, tisanes, botanicals, and custom blends. But as the blend count increased, she learned that she soon wouldn't be able to do it on her own anymore.

Jane Sibley
aka Auntie Arwen

It's said that good things come in pairs and for Jane, Colleen Jordan and her wife Lydia Fithian (better known in the SCA as Lady Kinbrough Lyons and Lady Mikalina Lydushka Pavlovna) were just the pair she needed. Working off and on at Auntie Arwen's from Pennsic XX and beyond, Jane knew they would be the future of her business, and it turned out Colleen and Lydia felt the same way! When they found out there was a chance Auntie Arwen's would close up shop, they stepped up from washing jars and bottling spices to keep the legacy alive. While Lydia learned all that she could from Jane about her blending techniques and ways to research recipes, Colleen went on to learn all about marketing, distribution, and design a few business plans.

Lydia Fithian and Colleen Jordan
aka Lady Mikalina Lydushka Pavlovna and Lady Kinbrough Lyons

As the years went on, things began to expand even further. Now that Lydia and Colleen were running the main tents, Jane was able to return to selling locally, Lisa came on board as their official tea aficionado, and Auntie Arwen's is now available online 24/7 for all your seasoning needs. As if we didn't already know how wonderful they are, Auntie Arwen's Spices was recently awarded "Duchess Favorite" at A Market Day at Birka earlier this year in the East Kingdom.

Lughaidh, Ludwig, Sinn, Thorve, Aurri, Epy, Vilhjelmr, Jacinthia, Sir Gaius, Caran

Officer's Gave the Following Reports

Chatelaine: Lady Caran DeBurg Present

- Couple of newcomers; one has been making garb and researching ideas, the other has vanished
- No demos or recruiting going on
- Struggling with not being to see newcomers face to face to maintain retention
- Still wants videos from the populace of them doing their favorite SCA activities
  - Sir Gaius asked about gathering at all, but with maintaining social distancing
  - Vilhjelmr replied that absolutely no SCA activities are allowed.
  - Epy offered the idea of holding a newcomers roundtable on Zoom/ Discord
- Lady Caran followed up that she noticed it's the same few people who are participating within the Barony. There has been great difficulty bringing back older members
  - Epy inquired about a society wide data point on retention was available for review
  - Caran pointed out that the tools for figuring out the issues are out there and have been used, people simply aren't responding to them

- Sir Gaius commented that more people seem to be active on Facebook, but that outlet allows an easier time for negativity to come up
- Baroness Sinn has talked with other Baronies and they all have their different methods for retention. There is no "play book" to follow to maintain members.

Exchequer: Lady Thorve of Highland Foorde Present

- $12,648.43 in Baronage account. 2nd quarter report is almost finished and ready for submission
- Received refund check from Wilson Ruritan for $50, will deposit into account later this week

- Jeff is working on his warrant, just waiting on signatures. Should be good to go for August
- After stepping down from Seneschal, there is a firm possibility Lughaidh will be doing in heraldry of some kind

Baron and Baroness:
